

Ashland to Play Ball Here Sunday

The management of the Mt. Sterling Baseball Club has been turned over to Mr. Brashaw, of Clay City, Ky., who promises to promote to the public a real baseball club and give the public the best baseball that can be had. The club is very fortunate in having such a splendid gentleman to take this over and promote it on his own hook and give the public some real baseball for the summer. Mr. Brashaw will book only the very highest class clubs to be had and will also put the very best team on the field Mt. Sterling ever had. Such stars as Jones, Blakely and Freeman, Vanlandingham, Thois, Skidmore, Shanklin and the rest of the club will be the very best that can be reasonably had. So come out and help make this a success for the new manager, as it is up to the public if they want a good team. Let's get together and fill the park Sunday, as Ashland will play here, and come recommended as a much stronger club than the Huntington club. The best game of the year is expected, as Mt. Sterling has secured several new players under the new management who include Vanlandingham and Freeman, star pitchers of the Winchester Hustlers, and Thois, their star catcher, also will be with Mt. Sterling.

Remember, Ashland here Sunday, and a fast game promised.

Irwin Jackson Goes to Winchester

Irwin Jackson, of Mt. Sterling, a registered pharmacist, has accepted a position with the Gilliam Drug Company, of this city, and will assume his duties on Friday morning.

He is a graduate of the Louisville School of Pharmacy and comes to Winchester very highly recommended as an efficient man. About two years ago he graduated from the Louisville College, since which time he has been connected with one of the leading drug stores of Louisville, and for a short time has been employed in one of his home town drug stores.—Winchester Sun.

H. G. Hoffman, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, addressed the Lion's Club, of Winchester Tuesday and needless to say his striking individuality and unequalled enthusiasm made quite a hit with the Clark county delegation.

Prof. Goodwin Elected County School Supt.

At a meeting of the County Board of Education, composed of R. C. Palmer, Shirley Mason, Frank Lockridge, H. B. Prewitt and Dr. Morton Faulkner, held in the County Superintendent's office Tuesday afternoon, Prof. M. J. Goodwin was elected County School Superintendent for a term of four years, beginning January 1st, to succeed the present incumbent, Miss Georgia Sledd. The position carries with it a salary of $100 per month.

The newly elected superintendent is at present superintendent of the County High School, and prior to his selection to this place conducted a private school in this city for a number of years. He is recognized as one of the leading educators in this city and is a conscientious gentleman, thoroughly capable of filling the position in a most acceptable manner.

Miss Sledd, who has served this county so efficiently for the past term and who, with Mrs. Ben R. Turner, were also applicants for the place, has made a most enviable record and has been tireless in an earnest endeavor to better educational facilities in this section.

It is understood the selection of Professor Goodwin will be contested on the ground that Messrs. Lockridge and Faulkner had been declared ineligible to hold the position as members of the board owing to having moved from the county to the city.

Clark Highway Work is Assured

The Winchester and Mt. Sterling pike, 10 miles from the city limits of Winchester to the Montgomery county line, will be built by federal, state and county aid. The committee composed of Eli B. Dooley and Joe S. Lindsey, to secure the rights of way, report that practically all of the property owners have signed agreements and the State Highway Commission will advertise for bids within the next ten days.

250,000 EXTRA VOTES FREE UNTIL 8 P. M. TUESDAY, JUNE 21ST

Right Now is the Best Time to Get the Greatest Number of Votes on Subscriptions. Hand Your "Favorite" Your Subscription or Renewal While It Will Bring the Most Votes

With plenty of time still remaining for candidates to enter the race and with the 250,000 Extra Vote Offer in force, giving new contestants a chance to catch up with the procession, enthusiasm in the high prize race is becoming intense. Each week candidates who see they have a good chance to win are starting their campaigns and all are meeting with good success. The candidates who take advantage of their opportunity right now and gather in all subscriptions possible, will stand a mighty good chance of winning the prize they most desire.

The Best Vote Offer

The importance of all candidates using every effort to get every available subscription between now and June 21st cannot be too strongly emphasized. Those prospective candidates who are thinking of entering should commence their campaign without delay so that they can take advantage of this big vote offer. Read the big vote offer below:

250,000 Extra Votes Free

250,000 Extra Votes will be given free on each and every "Club of $15" worth of new subscriptions turned in for or by a candidate before 8 P. M. June 21. Candidates may secure as many clubs of $15 as they can and on each club 250,000 extra votes will be given free. Only new subscriptions count on this offer.

Send in subscriptions as fast as you receive them, so we can get the paper started and all new subscriptions will apply on this offer. It is not necessary to wait until you get a complete club before sending in your subscriptions.

Subscriptions sent by mail will be accepted and counted under this big offer if mailed from any postoffice on or before June 21st, providing the envelope containing same is postmarked not later than 8 P. M., June 21st. To further give all candidates an equal opportunity to take advantage of this big vote offer, we make the following ruling: "If you live on a rural route or at some postoffice which closes before 8 P. M., call the campaign manager by telephone—let him know the names of the subscribers you have and he will allow you to send the subscriptions on the first mail the following day." Don't hold back subscriptions with the expectation of getting a bigger vote offer, for if you do, you will be greatly disappointed. No better vote offer will be made at any future time during the campaign.

Don't wait until June 21st to send in your subscriptions. Turn them in as fast as you receive them, so we can get the paper started and then the subscribers will save the 50-vote coupons for you. Only new subscriptions count on the above offer, but both old and new subscriptions count toward the following vote offer:

In addition to the 250,000 vote offer, twenty prize ballots—the first for 1,000,000 Extra Votes, the second for 950,000 Extra Votes, and so on down, will be awarded to the first twenty candidates—regardless of districts—who turn in the greatest amount of OLD and NEW subscriptions on or before June 21st, at 8 P. M.

Subscribers—Vote Now!

Don't wait until later to help your favorite. Do it now, while your renewal will bring the most votes. Not only will you be assisting some candidate, but you will also be saving money by taking advantage of the special bargain rate of $1.50 a year.

Save the 50-vote coupons which appear in each issue and vote for your favorite.

The best way to help your favorite win is to subscribe to the Advocate or renew your subscription.

Subscriptions bring the most votes and any contestant on the list will greatly appreciate your support in their race.

Candidates should be sure to get the proper name and address of the subscriber and write plainly on the contest receipt slip which you hand in to the Campaign Department.

Subscriptions changed from one member of the family to another are not considered "new" subscriptions, and votes will be issued as on an "old" subscription.

Until further notice, no candidate will be allowed to poll more than a sufficient number of votes to place their standing 15,000 votes in advance of the leader of the preceding issue. Where more than the limit are polled the balance will be dropped back into the ballot box for publication in the following issue.

If your name is a little down on the list, send in more votes for publication. It is a good idea to keep your standing up among the leaders.

Application was made for the widening of High street, now under contract for re-construction. Mayor McKee appointed two property holders living on each street to be rebuilt, to act as a supervisory body, while the work is being done on the streets. WE SHOULD SMILE!

The thing that goes the farthest toward making life worth while—That costs the least and does the most—is just a pleasant smile—The smile that bubbles from the heart, that loves its fellow-men Will drive away the cloud of gloom and coax the sun again. It's full of worth and goodness, too, with manly kindness bent; It's worth a million dollars, and it doesn't cost a cent.

There is no room for sadness when we see a cheery smile; It always has the same good look—it's never out of style; It nerves us on to try again, when failure makes us blue; Such dimples of encouragement are good for me and you, So smile away; folks understand what by a smile is meant—It's worth a million dollars, and it doesn't cost a cent.

"I wish you would tell me," said the agent, who had been a long time on Mr. Snagg's trail, "what is your objection to having your life insured?"

"Well, I don't mind telling you," replied Snagg. "The idea of being more valuable dead than alive is distasteful to me."

over ten thousand performances, his name has become almost a household word, and few entertainers have ever won such an enthusiastic following in city after city.

Ralph Bingham's versatility excites the wonder of any audience. He is a fine pianist, an excellent violinist, a unique impersonator and an unequalled story teller. A combination of these gifts is used to excellent advantage on his Redpath programs as well as on the records which he makes for the Victrola.

The success of his stories is in himself; he laughs and the contagion of his jollity is irrepressible. Nevertheless Mr. Bingham's subject matter is of the highest type, and its inspirational value is of the best.

"Then, why don't you dig it up?" I asked.

The Favorite Child

(By Frances A. Gray)

It was the one unmarried member of our little group who quite innocently started the discussion. Something had been said about Hortense and her children and Grace remarked, "Isn't little Jack Hortense's favorite child?"

The Sentimental Mother was somewhat shocked. "My dear," she exclaimed, reproachfully, "no mother worthy of the name loves one child more than another! It's impossible for a mother to have a favorite among her children."

But the Practical Mother as usual, brushed aside mere superficialities. "Nonsense!" she retorted, it is impossible that any woman who has more than one or two children should not have a favorite, even if she never admits the fact to herself. Within one family the children will often differ very widely in natural disposition, temperament—in every possible trait. If a mother has several children it is almost certain that there will be one among them who is naturally more congenial to her than than the others." She paused and then added with her surprising frankness, for she is one who openly admits what other people are apt to conceal and deny even to themselves, "Now my little girl is too much like me for us to get along harmoniously. She is quick and high-strung too, and frankly, she often gets on my nerves. But little Frank is exactly like his father—very calm and placid and easy-going, and I'm really much more fond of him."

There is something undeniably true in the point of view of the Practical Mother. It is possible that in one of her children a mother may find a more congenial and responsive nature than in any of the others. But the question is not whether it is natural for her to feel such a preference, but whether she is justified in letting it affect her attitude toward her children so that the fact becomes noticeable to other people and even to the children themselves.

In large families we frequently see parents who give a certain prestige and power to the eldest, permitting him to dictate to the whole family. Even more frequently we see parents, but especially mothers, who favor the youngest child, granting him greater consideration, though expecting less from him than from the others; in short, petting him all through her lifetime. "Middle children" are seldom the recipients of extra favors unless in the case of an only girl or an only boy in the family of the opposite sex. I recall one little incident of a stepmother of one girl and five boys which I thought quite touching. She had a beautiful book which they all wanted very much, but which they refused to own together. Naturally, she was uncertain to whom she should give the book, but finally, handing it to the third boy, he said, "I'm sorry I haven't a book for each one of you, but I think I'll give this to you, Harry. You aren't the oldest and you aren't the youngest, and you aren't the only girl, so you don't get many extras." Then, patting him on the shoulder, he added with a smile, "Besides, I was a middle child, myself."

Parents should watch very carefully to avoid partiality, for if they do not, the moment is sure to come when the children will discover it. As soon as any such partiality becomes evident the favored child is apt to become "spoiled," and the seeds of that ugly quality of jealousy are sown in his sisters and his brothers.

A child's nature should be allowed to unfold in the sunny atmosphere of love and trust. By studying his needs, parents can help to bring out the best in him, thus forestalling that coldness and lack of sympathy which we regret to see between parents and those adult children whose attitude toward life is embittered because, when they were young and affectionate they were subjected to the chilling effect of the consciousness that a little sister or brother always stood first in their parent's affection.

The head of a coal firm, irritated beyond endurance at a driver's blunder, told him to go to the office and get his pay and not come back.

"You are so confounded thick-headed you can't learn anything!" he shouted.

"Begorra," answered the driver, "I learned wan thing since I've been with ye."

"What's that?" snapped the other.

"That sivilteen hundred make a ton."

He who loses wealth, loses much; he who loses a friend loses more; but he who loses his courage loses all.—Cervantes.

Newspaper Ads

Boost Business

Use newspaper advertising to full advantage in calling the public's attention to the constant effort of the retailer to lower prices, David P. Davis, of Frankfort, advised the Kentucky Association of Retail Clothiers in a paper read at the annual convention of the organization in Louisville. He declared that more than ever before retailers are depending upon newspaper space to call attention to strong points of familiar wares and to bring out their prices.

Mr. Davis had as his subject, "What Is Being Done to Increase Business." He declared that a close investigation showed that the retailer who had on hand merchandise at high prices had "long since forgotten the cost and today is selling these goods at far less than they cost and in many instances at even less than replacement prices. In cases where new, clean and desirable merchandise now is being bought, close profits are the order of the day."

"It is no longer a question of what an article is worth," he asserted, "but how low priced we can sell it. The day of long profits has passed and the main purpose of every retailer now is an effort to prevent losses in his business."

He declared that it was safe to assume that hundreds of Kentucky merchants will be able to operate this year without losses and that the one who shows a profit will be the exception.

He urged the merchants to buy only dependable, clean and reliable merchandise at the best possible advantage and to sell at a close margin of profit.

Paris to Have a Fishing Club

Organization of a fishing club for residents of Paris and Bourbon county has begun as a result of the gift of about six acres of ground by Louis Rogers, whose farm is about two and one-half miles south of Paris on the Lexington pike. Eighty-seven shares of stock out of the proposed 100 shares at $100 each, had been sold by Lafayette Ardery, one of the promoters, up to noon yesterday.

As soon as the stock is disposed of the company will organize and begin operations at constructing an artificial lake and a club house on the ground. Several good springs are in this immediate neighborhood and it is thought that it will not be difficult to construct a lake at this location, which is between the Lexington pike and the Louisville & Nashville railroad.

This organization is separate from the recently organized Bourbon County Fish and Game Club, but it will co-operate with the other organization.

The teacher, a lady of questionable age, was having a hard time getting Johnny to memorize the names of the kings of England.

"Why, when I was your age," she finally exclaimed, exasperated, "I could recite the names of all the kings forward and backward."

"Yes'm," replied Johnny, unimpressed, "but when you was my age there wasn't nearly so many kings."

Young Men Wanted to Attend Training Camp

Sergeant Harlie C. Sylvester, U. S. Army, on duty at Headquarters, Fifth Corps Area, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, has, at his own request, been authorized to make a cross-country "hike," covering three of the four states comprising the Fifth Corps Area—Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky—in the interest of the Citizens' Military Training Camp to be held during the summer of this year. Sergeant Sylvester will cover approximately 737 miles between May 16th and June 30th, visiting the leading cities of the three states.

This non-commissioned officer has been in the service since 1899, four years of which was in the Navy, aboard the U.S.S. Chicago and the U.S.S. Maine. He served in the Philippines from the early part of 1900 until 1902, participating in seven engagements against the insurgents. During the late war Sergeant Sylvester served with the Second Division, taking part in five major operations. He has traveled approximately 200,000 miles and has spent ten years in foreign service in the Philippines, Cuba, Hawaii, England, France and Germany.

Sergeant Sylvester is 40 years of age, and his physical condition is a strong testimonial of the advantages offered the young men of the country by these training camps, where they will not only receive military training, but will receive physical training that will be of the greatest benefit to them in civil life. This veteran is an enthusiastic booster for these camps and sincerely advises all young men to arrange to attend one of these camps, who can possibly do so.

The government pays all expenses incident to this training. For further information apply to J. F. Reynolds, Jr., Mt. Sterling, Ky.

That Pesky Poison Ivy Is Coming Again

To those of us who live in the country and to those of us who love to wander through the quiet places, the season has again arrived for poison ivy. What shall we do when attacked?

First thing—soap and hot water in wholesale applications. The poison, after being deposited in the skin, requires some time to penetrate, and if this penetration can be prevented by thorough washing, eruption and irritation will not result. While exposed parts should be cleansed in this manner as soon after exposure as possible, it is worth while to make the attempt even twelve or twenty hours afterward in the hope that at least a portion of the poison may be removed. A heavy lather should be produced and washing should continue several minutes. Severe scrubbing with a brush is not advisable, but several swabs or small compresses of gauze may be used, discarding each in turn. So that the poison may not be distributed by the cloth.

Bathing with alcohol diluted with an equal amount of water is also an effective preventive. Where exposure has been more general, a bath for the entire body, followed by a change of clothing is a good preventive measure. The hair should not be neglected. Bathing, if not accompanied by sufficient changing of water and clothes, may result in the spreading of the rash to skin that had not been infected. In cases that are at all serious a physician should be consulted.

Business isn't good until it begins to interfere with your pleasure.

40 Millionaires Live In New York State

New York State's supremacy not only in both business and population, but as the center of vast wealth is shown by statistics given out by State Controller James O. Wendell, indicating that the Empire State had a number of multi-millionaires who reported taxable incomes of $1,000,000 or more in 1920.

Statistics of Federal incomes compiled for 1918 showed that there were forty persons making returns from New York State with individual taxable incomes of $1,000,000 or more, whereas eleven other states reported a combined total of only twenty-seven persons with taxable incomes of $1,000,000 or better, making a grand total of but sixty-seven in the entire United States.

Pennsylvania came next to New York with nine financial leaders, reporting $1,000,000 incomes, while New Jersey, Delaware and Massachusetts trailed along with three each.

Illinois and Maryland had two members of the $1,000,000 fraternity and Michigan, Connecticut, Ohio, Rhode Island and Texas boasted of one each.

Hogs Suffer Unless Provided With Shade

In view of the fact that hogs are non-sweating animals they suffer greatly from the heat during the summer months unless given some protection in the form of shade or water for wallowing purposes, according to animal husbandrymen. Concrete wallowing tanks are satisfactory for keeping the animals cool, but when it is impossible to have these shade has been found to be the most practical form of relief.

If there are no trees in the pasture field to afford the necessary relief from the heat of the sun a good shelter may be constructed by setting some short posts in the ground covering enough space so that all the hogs can get under without crowding. Some two by four-inch or other light lumber may be nailed to the top of these posts and then covered with light boards to form a roof. The boards must be nailed down to prevent their being blown off by the wind. If the owner wishes the building for a permanent shade, rafters can be set up and the structure made more complete.

A shed-roof type of building 14 feet long and five and one-half feet high in front sloping down to three and one-half feet high in the back has given satisfactory results at the College of Agriculture farm, according to Prof. E. J. Wilford. No sides are put on the building as a free circulation of air is desirable.

Where concrete wallowing tanks are used for keeping hogs cool a small amount of oil should be placed in the water to prevent contamination and to assist in keeping the animals free from lice.

Luke M'Luke Dead

James S. Hastings (Luke M'Luke) widely known as a newspaper man and humorist, died at midnight Friday at a Cincinnati hospital. He was 53 years old.

Mr. Hastings was operated upon last Saturday for appendicitis, and his condition was considered favorable until Friday, when he suffered a lapse. Mr. Hastings has been on the staff of the Cincinnati Enquirer for 20 years.

He is survived by a widow and four children.

The mule couldn't help recognizing himself in this essay written on him: "The mule is hardier than the gase or turkie. It has two more legs to walk with, two more to kick with, and wears its wings on the side of its head."

Frequent Cultivation Will Help Strawberries

Experience in the care of new strawberry beds shows that it pays to hoe often and to continue plowing throughout the growing season using a small cultivator every week or ten days, according to experienced strawberry growers. The bed should never be allowed to become foul with weeds as it requires considerable time and work to clean out such a bed.

After the bed has been set in the spring and up until the first of July it should be cultivated with a small implement or tool preferably a 14-tooth garden harrow, making the cultivation in both directions. As soon as the runners have grown to about one foot long the two-way cultivation may be discontinued and the runners allowed to form a matted row which should gradually fill up and widen out until about 10 inches wide.

Up until the time of discontinuing the two-way cultivation only a small amount of hand hoeing is necessary, but as soon as the runners have formed a matted row, grass and weeds will begin to develop rapidly especially in wet weather. As soon as this condition arises considerable work with the hand hoe will be necessary, according to M. O. Hughes, special agent of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station. The bed should be hoed from two to four times, using a narrow hoe pulled 3 to 4 inches wide and doing enough hand pulling to remove all weeds where the plants are thick. Since a uniform stand is desirable throughout the bed care should be taken to train runners to fill out the missing places. The care of the bed should be such that it is clean when laid to

Best results with old beds are obtained if all the vines are mowed off and the bed raked clean immediately after the end of the bearing season, which is usually about June 15th in Kentucky, according to Mr. Hughes. As soon as the ground has been cleaned the rows should be barred out on each side with a disc cultivator until they are about six inches wide.

When this is completed it is a good plan to roll down the bed and split out the middle of the row, using a double shovel or bull tongue plow. The bed then should be given cultivation similar to that given a new bed, frequent plowings being made. As the vines throw out new plants the row should be allowed to widen out until it is about 12 inches wide and then given the same amount of hoeing as that given a one-year-old bed.

Chicks on Range Make Best Growth

In order that growing pullets may have an opportunity for developing normally and reaching maturity at the proper time it is important that they be separated from the remainder of the flock and placed on good range when eight to ten weeks old, depending on weather conditions, according to J. R. Smyth, field agent in poultry from the College of Agriculture. In being removed from the brooder the young pullets should be weaned away gradually from the heat as changing them from a heated brooder to a colony house with no heat is certain to result in crowding. The range may include the entire farm or be limited to a small area, but regardless of size should supply green food and shade for the growing birds. They should also have a plentiful supply of cool, fresh water.

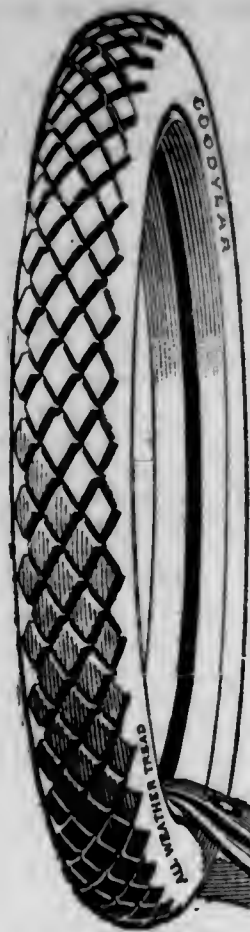

Alfalfa or clover range has been found to be the most satisfactory in helping the chicks make a normal growth, but if these are not available any green pasture or orchard may be used or such crops as rye and oats sown. A vinegar barrel equipped with a faucet and set on a box provides a convenient method of watering the chicks. A constant supply of water is furnished by opening the faucet in the end of the barrel each morning so that the water drips slowly into the pan below. The rate of drip should be governed by the size of the flock. The faucet should be closed at night.

It is essential that plenty of shade be furnished the chicks during the hot summer days and if trees or bushes are not growing on the range temporary shade should be provided by growing some crop such as corn or sunflowers. A crude shed will supply shade in the absence of anything better.

As soon as the sex can be determined the pullets and cockrels should be separated. It is usually more profitable to sell all surplus cockrels at this time, keeping only those that will be needed for breeding purposes the following fall. Pullets and cockrels should be placed in separate houses, care being taken to see that birds of approximately the same size are placed in the same house. If the chicks are confined in the colony house for one day after being removed from the brooder house or the mother hen they will return to the house at night.

Stop a minute and say "Hello"

For a kindly word and a cheery smile
Will shorten the way by many a mile.

Stop a minute—and say "Hello."

The Deadliest of All

Some time since there was published in the daily papers the following telegram:

Paducah, Ky., May 27—That the use of tobacco is "the deadliest curse of the American nation today," and that the deadliest of all articles is "a little roll of paper called the cigarette," was the declaration of Mrs. Frances E. Beauchamp, Lexington, state president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, before convention sessions this morning of the district organization of White Ribbon workers.

"Women of the W. C. T. U., don't flicker on this tobacco question! Save those who use tobacco from this curse of the defilement of the temple of God! Liquor was a curse; tobacco is a greater curse. The deadliest of all things is the deadly little cigarette. A cigarette fiend will invariably lie and steal, it has been proved by eminent authority," the speaker declared in her attack on tobacco.

Mrs. Beauchamp is a woman of character, ability, of proven influence, a public speaker of long and wide experience, so it is to be presumed that she weighs her words with care.

The organization to which she spoke has demonstrated its high purpose and power. What Mrs. Beauchamp has to say is of moment—what she says to an organization of women who even before they had the right of suffrage proved their capacity for public affairs is of greater moment. Are her statements accurate?

"Liquor was a curse; tobacco is a greater curse. The deadliest of all things is the deadly little cigarette." Is this correct? If so, is it not strange that the human race still persists.

Mrs. Beauchamp is quoted as saying:

"A cigarette fiend will invariably lie and steal, it has been proved by eminent authority."

A man accounted great in his day, a minister of the Gospel, who through a long life devoted his high ability to the study of the Scriptures, after long and arduous study of the inspired writings, stated that he had never found but one phrase that could be eliminated—that it was written, "Daniel said, in his haste, all men are liars," and that old preacher said he could not understand why the inspired writer had thought it necessary to inject the phrase "in his haste"—that Daniel might have taken all the time he wanted to make the statement ascribed to him.

In the days in which that old preacher spoke the cigarette was as unknown as it was when David spoke in haste. What made men liars then? The Rev. Dr. Pirkey ascribes all evils to the use of the pari-mutuel machines. Mrs. Beauchamp gives the "deadly little cigarette" credit for making men lie and steal.

We look forward to an announcement from someone else in the comparatively near future that the modern style of women's dress is the cause of all evils and anticipate the announcement from some high authority that the chewing of gum and the consumption of soda water are destroying the health and the morals of the rising generation.

And won't it be a great old world when everything is made perfect and all things of evil prohibited! Cigarettes and gum, and soda water and women's dress and pari-mutuel machines—well, they are enough to abolish to start with—Lexington Herald.

Alvin T. Hert Dies at Washington Hotel

Alvin A. Hert, of Louisville, Republican national committeeman of Kentucky, died suddenly Tuesday at the New Willard hotel in Washington, D. C.

Mr. Hert was 56 years of age. He had gone to Washington to attend the meeting of the Republican National Committee.

Death came to Mr. Hert with such swiftness that within a moment a smile on his face, as he joked with friends, was changed to an expression of pain. He grasped for breath. A moment later he had passed away.

He was reclining on a bed in his apartment at the Willard hotel when he was stricken at 4:15 o'clock. Apoplexy was the cause. Congressmen John W. Langley and J. M. Rohison and Matt Chilton, of Louisville, the latter having accompanied Mr. Hert to Washington, were still chuckling over one of Mr. Hert's good-natured jests when they were shocked to see him in the throes of death.

Mr. Hert became nationally known in politics after becoming Kentucky's member of the Republican National Committee five years ago. He was a factor in bringing about the nomination of Harding at the Chicago convention. He was considered for a time for a cabinet post. While he was not appointed to the cabinet, President Harding sought to tender Mr. Hert a diplomatic post, but he declined because he did not care to leave this country, even temporarily. He was a luncheon guest of President Harding when in Washington two or three weeks ago.

Editors Reject

Gambling Move

The opposition effectually spiked the anti-race track gambling movement at the Kentucky Press Association convention at Danville Tuesday.

"Any attempt to inject into the proceedings of the Kentucky Press Association any matter not purely within the province of this organization of editors of the state will be firmly met," declared R. L. Elkin, Lancaster, president of the K. P. A. "The discussion of racing or race track gambling does not come within the province of this association," said Mr. Elkin. "Political, moral or purely civic issues are not germane to the purpose for which this association was organized, nor may they be considered or acted upon under our constitution and by-laws."

"I have heard a great deal to the effect that this matter of race track gambling is to be made the subject of a resolution, but I will state here and now that if any member does offer such a resolution or endeavor to inject it into discussions on the floor of the convention I will declare such a resolution and the speaker out of order." President Elkin pointed to the fact that for several years attempts were made to have the association go on record as favoring prohibition, but they were always met in the same manner.
